

What are known about electronic harassment ? FAQ

Who are doing the crime ?

Since this is invisible crime, most of the victims are not sure who attack them. However, a former British military intelligence employee Barrie Trower has testified that microwave weapons were developed both in capitalist and communist countries during cold war and they have been used by military intelligence and radiation on civilians for human experimentation purpose has also been done for decades. Carl Clark, who contracted with several secret services and was engaged in covert operation also testified his team has a division in charge of electronic harassment. Meanwhile, criminal organizations which obtaining the technology can their targets. The perpetrators and their purposes could vary.

What's nonconsensual human experimentation?

Many of those who complain about electronic harassment are ordinary citizens and have no reasons to be attacked by advanced technology. Considering the torture lasts for long period without apparent purposes, that mind-control techniques which have been developed by military appear to be used and the history of past human experimentation by public institutions, many of the victims think of the crime as long-term non-consensual human experimentation for development of weapons and medical research. Without concrete evidence we suspend identifying the criminals and call for public investigation

Aren't "victims" schizophrenic?

If you complain you hear voices in your head, it will be natural that you may be thought as having a mental disorder. However, what the victims report such as mitigation of pains and other various damages by shielding and jamming, unusually frequent malfunction and breakdown of electronics and measurement of strong electric fields in victims' residences show this is physical and intentional attacks. Carl Clark, the former secret service agent also confessed the involvement of psychiatrists in such secret operations. On the other hand, unusual long-term torture could cause actual mental illness ,although it is not a cause of their complaints but the results of the crime.

What's the solution?

It is technically too difficult for ordinary citizens to obtain evidence enough to prove the crime in court, so our activism focuses on research and PR campaign to urge governments, mass media and academic institutions to investigate this issue. For this purpose, what is the most important is for each of you ordinary citizens to speak out and say you will not allow such human right breach. Otherwise, we will be seeing people being targeted by so advanced military technology that they cannot prove the activities. We have to raise our voice to claim information disclosure and investigation by the government.

Protect you and those you love

Weapons do not select their target and everyone can be attacked by stealth weapons. Besides human experimentation they can be used for various purposes such as muzzling, laying off revenge and so on. We have to notice those who socially complain intensive attacks might be "exceptional," considering the advantage of stealth weapons. In other words, much more people can be attacked in subtle and covert manners, in order to change their behaviors including the ones of those in power. The use of such covert violence might lead to the arrival of fascism in the near future.

Protect laws, peace and human rights

How many of people have experienced physical torture in this modern age? The suffering, including sexual abuse, by electronic harassment is so vicious that you want to cover your eyes once you understand it. Now there are political arguments in many countries whether they should prioritize national security or civil liberty. However, no use talking about security while ignoring actual attacks on citizens nor talking about liberty while neglecting deprivation of basic human rights of so many people. We have to face real problems and recover peace democracy.

Protect clean and healthy society

In this crime, non-thermal bio-effects of electromagnetic waves is used, which has been intentionally neglected for decades. Thus, we exposing the crime will lead to change in public views on bioeffects of non-ionized radiation. The change may include attitude to electromagnetic hypersensitivity, whose patients have now difficulties gaining public understanding, and other types of danger under rapidly growing environment full of non-ionized radiation, overcoming the protection of industrial profits to choose more careful stance based on precautionary principle. The awareness will influence other issues and help build a cleaner safer society.

Protect free will, our core

The most advanced type of attacking in electronic harassment is remote controlling of human brain and body, similar to controlling artificial limbs by brainwaves of physically impaired people. This will threat free will, the very core which divides us from other animals. The exposure of the technology which thought to be classified for national security allow us to use it in better purposes and divert public eyes on criminal activities of the involved institutions, which will lead society in a better direction.
